ABOUT

I don't just make content. I build brand languages.

I'm a Computer Science student who thinks like a brand strategist. I study what makes people stop scrolling, what makes them trust a brand, and what makes them come back. My work sits at the intersection of visual identity, content psychology, and digital storytelling — built for brands that want to mean something.

What I Bring

02

Brand Identity Design

Logos, marks, and visual systems built on strategic foundations — not trends.

Social Media Strategy

Channel-native frameworks that turn followers into a community.

Content Systems & Pillars

Repeatable content engines designed around audience psychology.

Reels & Video Editing

Reels & Video Editing

Short-form storytelling crafted for retention, rhythm, and recall.

Visual Storytelling

Layouts, type, and color that make every post feel like a chapter.

Audience Psychology

Studying why people stop, save, and share — then designing for it.

How I Think

01

Observe

I study the brand, the audience, and what already exists.

02

Identify

I find the gap between what the brand says and what people feel.

03

Build

I create systems — not one-off posts.

04

Refine

I iterate based on what performs and what resonates.
